

14 YONSEI JOURNAL OF INTERNATIONAL STUDIES

Richard Ian Wright

National Chung Hsing University burgerkingburger@hotmail.com

Richard Ian Wright is currently a PhD candidate at National Chung Hsing University (NCHU), Taiwan. He received his MA from the University of British Columbia (UBC), Canada. Richard is also a full-time lecturer at Central University of Science and Technology (CTUST) in Taichung, Taiwan. His research interests include cross-cultural communications and International Relations theory.

Cody R. Connolly

Seoul National University codyryanconnolly@gmail.com

Cody R. Connolly is an M.A. International Area Studies candidate and fellowship scholar at Seoul National University, where he specializes in East Asian foreign policy and security studies. Currently, he is conducting research on China's nuclear signaling behavior. Mr. Connolly is a 2019 Nuclear Nonproliferation Education and Research Center (NEREC) graduate summer fellow, as well as Editor-in-Chief of the Seoul National University Journal of International Affairs. Prior to his studies at SNU, Mr. Connolly studied history and political science at Oregon State University. His research focuses on North Korean nuclear issues, China's nuclear strategy, and international nuclear nonproliferation.

Ji Min Lee

Ewha Women's University, The University of Chicago
marinaejlee@gmail.com

Ji Min Lee will receive her B.A. at Ewha Womans University, the Division of International Studies with concentration tracks of Law & Diplomacy and Asian Studies. She has various international experiences, such as study abroad at the University of Toronto and Waseda University. She also took part in the Harvard Project for Asian and International Relations, Harvard College in Asia Program, and Ewha Harvard Summer School. She is to pursue her M.A. at the University of Chicago, Master of Arts Program in the Social Sciences (MAPSS). Her research interests are political science and international relations with an area focus on Northeast Asia. She can be reached via marinaejlee@gmail.com.

Line Wini Moerch

Yonsei University

geu.rae.seo@hotmail.com

Line Wini Moerch is currently enrolled at the Yonsei Graduate School of International Studies in Seoul, where she is finishing her master's degree in Korean Studies with a minor in International Security and Foreign Policy. Specializing primarily in Korean political history, her current research focuses on the historical development of bureaucratic practices in South Korea and the underlying effects of culture on corruption in a contemporary context. She attained her bachelor's degree in Korean Studies from University of Copenhagen and has hosted various events alongside the University of Copenhagen, the National Museum of Copenhagen, KOTRA, Korea Foundation, and the Korean Embassy in Denmark. Following graduation, she hopes to return to Northern Europe for a PhD in history or cross-cultural studies.

Ma. Jemimah R. Uy

Yonsei University – Graduate School of International Studies

jemimah.uy@gmail.com

Ma. Jemimah R. Uy is a Master of Global Affairs & Policy candidate at Yonsei University – Graduate School of International Studies. She holds an undergraduate degree in Literature from De La Salle University in Manila, Philippines. She was a delegate in the 22nd United Nations Youth Assembly that concluded in New York City last August 2018, where she advocated for the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) of Quality Education, Gender Equality, and Climate Action. Her research interests include: migration, development, gender, and cultural studies.

Alexandra Micu

Yonsei University – Graduate School of International Studies

allexandra.micu@gmail.com

I went to Babes-Bolyai University in Cluj-Napoca, Romania, where I had a double major in Korean Language and Literature and English Language and Literature. After graduating with honors in 2016, I decided to apply to the Korean Government Scholarship Program to continue my studies in South Korea. My research interests include gender and women's studies, international law and organizations, human rights, and migration studies. After graduating from Yonsei University's Graduate School of International Studies this summer, I wish to join a global center that facilitates the integration of foreigners into South Korean society.